Herz

We claim:

A system and method for employing a distributed network of agents across at least one intranet for purposes of collecting, aggregating, analyzing and modeling activities, operations, code, application functions, network and network resource conditions and other assessable criteria within and across the network and multiple network environment in order to be able to develop computer models which are able to identify and characterize events and conditions which are of a normal state and events and conditions which are of an abnormal or suspicious state.

EU 702 156 781 US